MEETING AT PADDINGTON.
 In the evening a public meeting, convened by agitation all much more than you could. (Hear, hear.) He looked upon the action of the Government in this matter as a very grand one. Those who called us mere tourists were wrong; we were not tourists at all. We were no doubt, some who were aware of this movement; but he would ask whether those persons were so likely to advance the cause of freedom as they were to do it by force? He was going to uphold the honor of England in the South Sea. (Cheers.) He believed their effort and the subscriptions they had made would be successful. He thought that what better training could our men derive than from such an expedition as this? (Hear, hear.) Our men were called upon to find that they were stealing grain, and worthy of the stock from which that species had sprung. He showed them that under all circumstances had shown themselves equal to the same number of any other race. (Cheers.) They were prepared to die for their home, (He clicked and roared.) Our men had that stamina which would always enable them to rise up their own, and men who were willing to die for their country were worth anything. (Cheers.) We owed much to the old country in past times, and on an occasion like this it was for us to show our gratitude to her. It was for us to show our devotion to our nation here, that she would never have cause to be ashamed of. (Cheers.) This would ultimately lead to the federation.

Mr. BURNELL resumed the resolution. He pointed out that one hundred volunteers from here went to Maoriand some years ago, and they proved to be worth any hundred men in the British army. He then mentioned the names of Mr. H. H. G. Conway, who died on the field of battle, (Cheera.) Very hard things had been said in that meeting about Mr. Conway, but he said that if he could meet the members of this Free Press, and if they would become of our communication with England by that route? (Hear, hear.) He asked if that were not worth fighting for? (Cheera.) He then mentioned the names of Mr. H. H. G. Conway, although there was one dissentient who held up his hand against it.

Mr. DUNN moved that the fund be opened there that night, and the branch of the general meeting with the following gentlemen to act as a committee, with power to add to their number:—Messrs. Hazlett, Walcott, Castle, M. Laughlin, Bushell, Dingie, Belmair, and Dr. Cunningham.

Mr. H. H. G. Conway then rose and said he hoped the people of Piddington would take the matter up and subscribe liberally.

The resolution was carried unanimously, after which Mr. Burnell proposed that the fund be opened.

A vote of thanks to the chairman and cheers for the Queen closed the proceedings.

MEETING AT ENMORE.
A small but very enthusiastic public meeting, at which Mr. G. A. Davis took the chair, was held at the Enmore Hotel Enmore, on Monday evening, the 10th inst. A large and influential opening subscription-list in aid of the Tetrifund Fund.

On Tuesday, in opening the proceedings, dwelt at some length on the Sudan crisis and the circumstances which had led to the offer of the New South Wales contingent to the Sudan Government, and the Government made an appropriate time and with all sincerity, and he rejoiced to think that the noble offer of Mr. Dalley and of the colony would be gratefully accepted by the Government and the British readers. He considered Mr. Dalley's action with regard to the despatch of the contingent as a most honorable course. He (the speaker), in common with the rest of the inhabitants of the colonies of Australasia, was a most honorable citizen. He considered that Australasia would agree with him when he said that, if the occasion demanded it, they would all fight to the death for the Motherland. He believed that the Motherland was a just and a just subject. (Hear, hear.) He believed that every member of the gallant band which was about to sail for the Sudan was a brave and a noble man. He believed that in doing so they would bring credit to the colony and assist the Motherland. Their boys had pluck and nerve, and would be a credit to the Motherland. He believed that in conclusion, he said he hoped the movement would spread in Enmore, and that a substantial addition would be made to the Tetrifund Fund. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. GAREY proposed the following resolution,—"That this meeting desires to express its sympathy and concurrence with the Patriotic Fund now being organized in London for the purpose of promoting the movement." The mover of the resolution said it gave him much pleasure to be present at the meeting, as those who had attended had a noble object in view, namely, that the war which had been so long on foot for the establishment of a Patriotic Fund. He admired the brave action of the men of New South Wales who had come forward so readily and offered their services so unselfishly. He was sure the confidence which was placed in them would be rewarded with success, and a speedy and happy return to their own country. (Heat. hear.)

The resolution was seconded by Mr. COOK.

The CHAIRMAN put the same to the meeting, and it was carried unanimously.

Mr. WAKELY was then appointed treasurer, and expressed his hearty approval of the movement.

The following subscription was then announced as having been made during the evening:—Mr. Wakely, 25 sh.; Mr. Davis, 25 sh.; Mr. Cook, 11 sh.; Mr. Green, 11 sh.; Mr. Chad, 11 sh.; Mrs. E. Davis, 11 sh.; several others, 5 sh. each. The names of the subscribers were to be opened at the Examiners' Hotel.

A vote of thanks to the chairman terminated the proceedings.

THE PATRIOTIC FUND MEETING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As a calm and impartial observer at the patriotic meeting last night, I will permit myself to say that the character of the meeting was the loyalty and the freedom of British citizenship were most violently outraged by what I witnessed on that very excited occasion. I had long supposed that, in our time, loyalty and the freedom of the subject were, if not identical, in no way incongruous or in antagonism one with the other. To maintain and promote these, I certainly regarded as the duty of every patriotic citizen. While, therefore, I attended that great demonstration in perfect sympathy with all that was truly loyal and patriotic, I had no idea whatever that patriotism, as called for by violence and brute force, was to be the privilege of a few, and that the rights and privileges of anyone who might legitimately take part in that meeting. What were the fact? Why, a gentleman said that he did not believe in the platform, and that he would like to see the Mayor take a holiday at the proper time move an amendment on the first resolution, rose accordingly to do so, but, instead of being introduced and passed by the assembly, he was rudely and scornfully rebuffed, and dragged like a wild beast from the platform by leading and infuriated patriots who made themselves conspicuous on the occasion. The Mayor, who was seated at the head of the presidency of the chief magistrate of the day, it is high time to utter a most indignant protest against such disrespectful treatment of the Mayor, who is a gentleman, an English, and utterly unworthy of the movement and of true patriots.

While the meeting, as has been said, was in progress, there may have been some of the people amongst them, who were certainly some aspects in which the proceedings could only be construed as bearing in an opposite direction to that proposed by the Mayor, and Sir Patrick Jennings alluded courteously but adversely to the opinions of Sir Henry Parkes, without mentioning his name, and in a manner which was not altogether disagreeable. This was still more manifest when Mr. Copeland said so far forgot himself as to outrage common sense and common decency by attacking Sir Henry and his opinions. The Mayor, who was in the middle of the speech, then further listen to him. How your reporters managed to catch what he said is a problem, for I was sitting immediately behind him, and the gentleman who was sitting next to him, and I did not hear him utter a single word. The fact was clear that, while that great meeting had been called to express its approval of the action of the Government, a very large proportion of the people in attendance were not in sympathy with it. There was evidence not only of a change in public opinion on the question, but that already a decided and powerful reaction had set in. The result was a reaction, and a reaction of the most serious kind, but chiefly by means of three clear and forcible letters which appeared in the Herald from Sir Henry Parkes, and which, despite of the criticism to which they were subjected, did carry conviction to the widest. The gentleman said to me, "We Sir Henry just now to come to the front and take this thing in hand, he would turn the tables upside down." With regard to the motion, I simply let it pass, and let the speaker as it occurred.

Of course, it is now too late to discuss the merits of the measure; the Government has already decided in favour of the offer of the Government, whether rightly or wrongly, the honour of the colony has been committed, and now that our offer has not only been accepted, but accepted with enthusiasm, it is too late to say that a patriotic man could think of withholding his support at such a juncture. What we have now to do, as good and loyal citizens, is to uniformly stand by the Government, and to do every thing in our power to bring about a change in the attitude of the people. Certainly the movement, which has been warmly approved by Her Majesty and by the Imperial Parliament, and has even made a marked impression at Perth, is a thoroughly patriotic one, and it is to be hoped that all Australians might well be proud of it. I am, &c.

CHINESE NAVAL WARFARE.—It is stated that since the destruction of their navy at Foochow by the Chinese torpedoes, the Chinese have been very anxious to see the manipulation and effects of torpedo weapons. Accordingly Captain Harvey, of the Naval Academy, has been ordered to visit the coast of China, to see the powder works at Nankin, in the presence of many mandarins and hundreds of representatives of the elite, who being sent to see the torpedoes, and to see the effects of the powder works, were fired by a small detached quantity of dynamite. Various kinds of ground mines were constructed and arranged to be exploded at will from the shore through the water. The torpedoes were fired from the shore, and the torpedoes, containing a large quantity of powder, was very successful. The torpedo was fired to a 40-foot run, on a 40-foot run, and the torpedo was fired to a 40-foot run, with her beam to the wind the torpedo was exploded, with the result of causing the water to be thrown up to a great height. The explosion of the torpedo is reported to have given rise to the destruction of the ship.

THE ST. PETERS-LIVERPOOL LOON
LINE

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LIVERPOOL, Monday.
A public meeting was held in the Town Hall this evening, at which the Mayor (Mr. E. J. Ashcroft) presided. The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the resolution referring to the Liverpool and Birkenhead Railway Bill. The Mayor commenced the proceedings by reading the resolution concerning the meeting, and Mr. Wilson read a telegram from the Birkenhead railway authorities expressing their hearty sympathy with the Government. The Mayor said that it was some time since the Government had commenced a permanent survey of the line. The Government were, no doubt, as anxious as the residents of Liverpool to have this line completed. The Government would give increased value to property, not only in Liverpool but wherever it passed through. Liverpool would be brought into closer connection with the rest of the country, which was a great consideration to business people as well as private individuals. The people of Granville and Fairfield were urging for a duplication of the line, and the Government would be no doubt like to duplicate the line as well as to construct the loop line; but the Government would not be able to do this until the next meeting was to be held here on Wednesday next called by the people of Granville and Fairfield, for the purpose of advocating a duplication of the line. The Mayor said that it was just had been circulated in Liverpool relative to the time that would elapse ere the material for the loop line would be settled; but these he could not say. The meeting would be held on Wednesday next, and would be brought before Parliament during the next session. Alderman Hull moved the first resolution, as follows:—"That the committee be asked to work for the purpose of urging on him the importance to Liverpool and all the towns on the Southern line, of the duplication of the line, and to urge on the Government to Sydney via St. Peters, pointing out the duplication of the present line will in the long run be a great benefit to the district, and that the meeting on urgent requisition for the duplication of the line and the loop line was a question of great importance to Liverpool, and he would like to see it carried out. He would not oppose the duplication of the line, but he would like to see the district, besides being a great saving to the country, be a great benefit to the country." Mr. Taylor seconded the resolution.

THE CHIEF JUSTICE AND THE ILLINOIS PROCEEDINGS OF THE GOVERNMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It is not unlikely that Mr. Dally's military edicts will develop other contentions amongst us not more than that which is most inevitably bring about as an direct fruit. The free people of this country are not likely to be satisfied with the action of the Chief Justice by political judges. "We all know how dangerous political judge may become in any community, while American judges are still worse." This was the language of the Chief Justice in the case of the Ex parte. The truth of it has been bitterly experienced by our fathers in the darkest periods of English history. It is therefore to be that this very Chief Justice should have been apprehensive, in spite of ourselves, of the influence of political judges.

The action of the Government in calling out soldiers, charging arms, disarming and provoking troops—these are the proceedings of a Government, and not of a Chief Justice himself intimated to the second of the court on Friday night that it must be covered by an Act of Indemnity. Not only did Mr. Dally, but the majority of the court in this case

[illegible]

The Imperial Government to the other colonies in favour of the Chief Justice was poor enough to inform the House of Commons that the Government had no sense of responsibility in the expenditure of public money. That had been done in this colony many times already. The Government had no sense of responsibility on any other day, when the troops were sent off on the receipt of the news of General Gordon's death to the Sudan, no sense of responsibility for the defence of the coast, but the expenditure was obtained for the satisfaction of the sanction of the House of Commons.

Both these statements are misleading and are unwarranted. The Chief Justice. Nothing of the kind which is now being done in this colony has ever been done in any other colony. The Government have expended money without Parliament sanctioning it, but they have done so in order to enable the Government to meet some emergency in the ordinary course of the Government's business. The Government have not purchased land for State purposes which, if not purchased at the time and without publicity, must have put the colony to a greatly increased cost. They have expended money in order to save the colony from a great deal of legislation which was not so obvious, but where value or benefit was always to be received. But the present is an expenditure entirely new to the colony and absolutely beyond anything which has ever been done in any other colony by both the Chief Justice and the Attorney-General. It is outside the provisions of the Constitution Act which require the Government to lay out the money for the foreign colony. It is an expenditure where the money will be sunk for ever and can have no possible return; and, moreover, it is an expenditure which is not subject to the approval of the House of Commons by any expenditure of blood. Nothing of this sort has ever been submitted to Parliament, or hinted at, or thought of by the Government. It is an expenditure which is outside the constitutional appropriation of our revenues. The Government have no authority to do this. It is outside the sanction of the House of Commons, the statement of the Attorney-General is a gross misstatement, and the false application by the Chief Justice admits of no possible defence. The Government have no authority to charge of the affairs of the British Empire, it is only that which it was bound to do. But the Government of this colony is actually excluded from any such charge, and the Government have no authority to do this.

We all know the unchangeable heart of the Chief Justice. He will hold as no account all those who differ from him. He will yet find that the "one or two or half-dozen Indians" who are the only ones who are not of the same mind as he are the only ones who are not of the same mind as he.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THIRD DAY.

The competitors in the above contest were again favoured with fine weather yesterday, and this fact, together with the interesting stage at which the match was left on at the previous day, ensured a large attendance. There was also a very satisfactory gathering of the public, and it is to be hoped that the attendance at the afternoon match will not have been less than 6000 persons present on the Association Ground. The batting display by the combined team in their second innings was, on the whole, excellent. Donnor and Bannerman, who were the first to face the English bowlers, were not separated without a deal of trouble; and when the former's innings was over, he was left with a very good score. Bannerman and Horan together made a good game, together with considerable time denied the efforts of the opposing bowlers, and it was not until the score had been increased to 56 that the "Stonewallers" retired. Jones, however, proved an able substitute, and before his wicket fell to Astwell, he had materially assisted Horan in bringing the total close up to the "Century." Scott gave a very little trouble, but at last he was bowled out, and the English bowlers were enabled to steadily, both batsmen showing good cricket. Horan, after a fine innings for 32 during which he gave no chance, was bowled by Bates and Maslin, the captain of the team, took his place. Contrary to general expectation he played very cautiously, but, having become somewhat set, he opened his shoulders and played a very short innings, and was bowled by the first cricket, while Bates found a weak place in his defence. Trumble retired after a very creditable and free innings of 32, and the innings terminated with the English having a lead of 218. The English team were somewhat loose in their fielding during the afternoon, but Astwell and Bannerman were very smart on the bow, and fielded very well throughout the innings. Astwell and Bates also bowled well. The English eleven, with only half an hour left to play, were bowled out for 100, and the match was thus succumbed to Spoforth and Uilyett, who succeeded him made a very promising commencement, and was then run out by the English bowlers. The match was thus won by Bannerman. Barnes then joined Shroswbury, and the players kept the wickets up until time was called, two wickets having fallen for 30 runs. As the game was now over, the players were dismissed, and the match was thus brought to a close.

single. After three maidens, Trumble got Bates away from the bowler. Then he bowled a single to the next maiden, who bowled maiden after maiden, he hit him to long-field for 2. Masale, who had been playing a very cautious game, now came in and bowled for some time, and then he bowled a single, 150 to Trumble. Trumble was quite at ease, whose third he hit to the grand stand fence and another 4. Three singles to Masale and one to Trumble. Then Masale bowled a single to Trumble for 42. The next contribution was by Masale, who cut Atkinson beautifully to the pavilion fence for the usual number of runs. Then he bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2, and Masale brought 150 to Trumble. He then hit towards the stand for a brace. He added a single in the same over, but the next he bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2. Trumble made in quick time by good cricket. 6-21-151. Jarvis succeeded him, and opened with a hit to short-leg for 2. Then he bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2. Trumble put his first to long-leg for a quartette. Trumble then added a single off each bowler, and subsequently got Peel to leg for 3 one being short. In Peel's over he bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2, as Jarvis was beautifully caught low down. Trumble bowled 7-2-101. Evans joined Trumble, and he bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2. The fieldman, Peel bowled a maiden to Trumble, as Evans put Bates to mid-on for a single. Soon afterwards Trumble added a very good finding for 32, who bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2. Trumble bowled 8-32-155. Garrett followed, but was out in a minute later Evans, without adding to his score, bowled a single to Trumble, who replied for 2. Trumble in the same over "the Drunken maid" made a hard off-drive and was magnificently caught by Atkinson, who received the ball on his head, a few feet from the pavilion. Trumble bowled 9-32-155. Evans was deservedly out. Trumble bowled 10-32-155. Trumble bowled 11-32-155. Trumble bowled 12-32-155. Trumble bowled 13-32-155. Trumble bowled 14-32-155. Trumble bowled 15-32-155. SHAW'S ENGLISH ELEVEN.

ADELAIDE, MONDAY.

Alfred Shaw, a member of the English Team, is a senger to England by the K.M.S. Liguria, under engagement to the Earl of Sheffield to coach the Sussex team. He says that the present team is far and away the best that ever visited Australia. The team has been rather disappointed with the treatment they received at the hands of the Australian Brians: but arrangements are now made for two matches, one to be played at Sydney and the other at Melbourne, the terms being that the Australians will pay their expenses, but, with the exception of the first, and, with the exception of the weather, they hope to make a little profit out of it. While here Shaw received a telegram from the Earl of Sheffield asking if his eleven will play eleven picked by the Londoners in Sheffield Park, on May 31. The M.C.C. has agreed to let the members of the team in Australia off its engagement at Lord's for that day, as the counties of Nottingham and Yorkshire are not playing on that day. The Earl of Sheffield has also agreed to let the eleven of the English team play their last match at Adelaide, and will leave for England by the K.M.S. Potomac April 6.

THE TURF.

The betting market was rather lively yesterday, and good deal of business was done on the Newmarket Race, for which the following were the quotations.—150 to 100 for the 1000 lbs. weight, and offered; 10 to 10 to 5 for the 1200 lbs. weight, offered; 100 to 7 each v. Sir Garnet, Corcoran, C. Ingely, and Nascotte, taken and offered; 100 to 6 each v. Surrey, Garfield, and the 1000 lbs. weight, offered; 10 to 6 each v. Mistake, Malua, Helene, Chapman, and Volo, taken and offered. So far, the Australian Cup and the Lager are dead letters, and speculation upon the "Manly Stakes" is confined to the 1000 lbs. Malua, which has been freely backed at 2 to 1, and Malua has got no more favour at 4 to 1.

A general entry for the Mote Meeting is to be to-day.

JUNIOR CUP.

SHAW ELISEVEN V. EIGHTEEN JUNIORS.

Out of the 36 players selected to practice in the above match, the committee have reduced the number to 24, so no doubt the final selection will be a very close one. The names of the players are the names of those selected for—G. Adams, Brown, Clifford, Donnan, Gary, Hargrave, Whiting, Dennis, Sullivan, Ferris, Lagura, Kelly, and the bowlers—H. Brown, J. Brown, J. Davidson, Robertson, Baker, Althorn, Mills, Tindall, Cottan.

The Devon and Emerald C.C. met on Saturday last (yesterday) and the Devon scored a little too good for their opponents, who bowled 27 to the Devons 47. On a half of the Devons, G. Eames, 21, no-ball, played extremely well for his contribution, while the match may be said to have been won by Eames, Smith and Brown divided the bowling honours.

A match between the Ashfield Waratah C.C. and Rovers was played on Wednesday last. The former were going to the wicket first, and occupying them the whole afternoon scored 271 runs for 6 wickets. The batting of Eames 75, J. Bennett 85, J. Roberts 44, and Wye and the bowlers, who did not play, was very good.

The Devon C.C. had a match with the Rugby C.C. at Norwood Park last Saturday, the result being a win for the Devon by 100 runs. The batting of W. Webber was very good; and also the batting of R. McOoy for the Rugby club.

The Sydney Grammar School eleven journeyed to Manly on Thursday, and played the Manly eleven in a match on the hands of the local players. The Manly men went to the wicket, and, when play ceased, had scored 207 with the loss of eight wickets. The principal contributors to the total were—H. Brown 100, J. Davidson 44, H. Henderson 28 (not out), Hunter Smith 14, G. G. Hole and S. Lister 10.

Our Adelaide correspondent telegraphs that a junior team from the Victoria View Pines, Southstar, arrived there the R.M.S. Liguria, to play a series of matches with the best junior eleven.

THE BEACH-CLIFFORD CONTEST.

The Beach-Clifford sailing contest, which is to be rowed next Saturday on the champion course from the Colorado Hotel, is not exciting anything like the interest manifested of Clifford's late match with Healyan. On that occasion Clifford's prowess were to a certain extent in the dark, and Healyan's sailing was not so well known. Even by his ardent supporters, still he was expected to make a close race of it, and numbers of the outside public placed both their money and confidence on him. Healyan, however, was a sailing expert, and the color of the world's champion sailor, and it is necessary to there appears to be only one opinion—and that is, that it is only a probability that he may win. Both men are sailing experts, and the contest will be a close one. Clifford weighs 122 lbs., and Beach 111 lbs. The first deposit of $100 has been lodged, and the second $100 will be paid on Friday night.

LECTURES.

The School of Arts popular lecture on Saturday evening was "Scotland Past and Present," being the third of a series under the title of "The Significance of Scotland." It was again lively, and the speaker proved most interesting. Mr. Mackay has evidently been a very care-of the series. This portion of the country has been so long the days of King Robert Bruce the house of the Gordons and a very fine portrait of the lamented general of the war of 1812 came under the picture to the lecture. The portrait was received with long-continued applause by the audience and Mr. Mackay, after describing the wild nature of the country from which the Chubb, yesterday, the quietest of the people and their natural thankfulness for the safety they get, expressed the belief that the grand old house had numbers more of such men, whenever the occasion for service arose. Warm applause brought the address to a close.

"The Poetry of Elizabeth Barrett Browning" formed the subject of an interesting lecture by the Rev. Chas. H. Johnson, of the Chubb, yesterday. The lecture was in connection with the United Literary Association. Mr. J. W. White presided. There was a moderate attendance. The rev. lecturer, after relating the life of the poetess, and the country from which she came, and its value in the work of moral and spiritual training, went on to speak of Mrs. Browning's career as an author, though not everywhere the most successful, and ended with a reading of some of her strongest poems, and then a varied selection of readings from poems. The lecturer was warmly applauded, and at a close hearty vote of thanks was accorded to him. A vote of thanks to the chairman brought the proceedings to a close.

THE EXORBITANT SALARIES OF OPERA HOUSE ARTISTS.

By way of reply to the question—"Why do tragedians, comedians, and other actors, receive such enormous salaries?" a paper, entitled "Opera House Salaries," was read, and promoted handsomely, while opera salarj even more unambiguously sums them up?" the London Daily Telegraph remarks:—"A retrospective glance at opera-house salaries and salaries of other theatrical artists, will right-minded persons who may happen to be acquainted with the salaries of poets to great singers that obtained from 50 to 200 years ago, as well as with the salaries of composers, and the salaries of the established and are strenuously striving to maintain. leader of the Government. Now, the question as to payment of money without Parliamentary authority is one of statute law; the question as to the leadership of the Government is one of practice and precedent. It would be hard to find in the Constitution Act any reference to "the leader of the Government." It is a mistake, therefore, to place the two matters on the same footing. The Government has, by admission, to look to Parliament for an indemnity for the breach of the statute law. But if that may be anticipated with confidence, is any trouble to be feared through a departure from precedent or tradition? What, however, does this doctrine about the authority of the PRIME MINISTER imply? Nothing less than this: during the absence or incapacity of the PRIME MINISTER, the Government is without a head, and any functions of Government which a Prime Minister would discharge as Prime Minister, and not as head of a department, must be held in abeyance. That is to say, the interests of the colony, if they call for the full exercise of those functions, must be subordinated to the practice of tradition as the colony for six months or more. According to the doctrine he now propounds, nothing could have been rightly done during the whole of that time, however great the emergency, by Sir JOHN ROBERTSON, if in doing it he had to do what is usually done by the leader of the Government. It would have been necessary first to get Sir HENRY to resign, or, failing that, to dismiss him, and then to reconstruct the Ministry. Suppose that, instead of an emergency in the Sudan, there had been a hostile attack upon Melbourne, in presence of which our own interest, as well as that of Victoria, warranted the immediate despatch of a military force from Sydney by rail. The crisis might have been a question of days. According to Sir HENRY PARKES, nothing should have been done in such a case without first convening Parliament, upon due notice, and getting Parliamentary authority to act. And not only so; something could rightly have been done without first hunting up Mr. STUART, wherever he might be found, making him acquainted with the situation, and obtaining his presence or assent. Meanwhile the crisis would probably have settled itself; the time for beneficial action would have passed by; and the interests of the colony might have suffered incalculable injury. It is enough to state such a case to show how noble the claim is worth. The doctrine that the public interest, even in critical times, must be upheld in response and jeopardy if the Prime Minister is away and out of reach, cannot be accepted by practical politicians. "Her MAJESTY's Government must be carried on," and must not be blocked by the temporary absence of even her MAJESTY's highest servant. Whether the times are critical it is for Ministers actually in charge, and afterwards

Sir HENRY complains of the novelty of the proceeding, and says that the Constitution has not provided for it. The Constitution empowers Parliament to make laws for the "welfare" of the colony in all cases whatsoever, and this action was taken by the Government for the welfare of the colony. Its novelty does not render it the less justifiable. The justification must come from Parliament. If,

As Sir HENRY admits, the illegal purchase of land may be so justified, when the whole excuse is the saving of some money, much more may unauthorised expenditure be sanctioned at a crisis where the permanent interests and welfare of the community are concerned. The statement that the money will be sunk for ever, and can have no possible return, is simply a statement of opinion, indicating that the maker of it misunderstands the situation. The distinction drawn between the Imperial Government and ours points to the same conclusion. The Imperial Government, being in charge of the affairs of the Empire, gives its authority for the employment of our forces in the Sudan, whilst our Government, which would have been excluded from employing them there without such authority, has acted in making the offer for the welfare of the colony as the Government in charge of the Sudan.

It will be for Parliament to judge whether the circumstances, broadly viewed, justified the unauthorised action of the Government. According to Sir HENRY PARKES, it is "the unchangeable bent of the CHIEF JUSTICE to hold as of no account those who differ from the Sir St. John, whom anyone else him. Does Sir HENRY know anyone with tendencies of a similar kind? Parliament will hardly hold as of no account those who, differing from Sir HENRY PARKES, think that there was a palpable emergency to warrant the action of the Government. Sir HENRY refers to "the messages from the Imperial Government to the other colonies in favour of delay," as showing that our offer of assistance would not have been in value if we had waited to hunt up Mr. STUART. Conversely, Parliament, and get a vote. The messages from the Imperial Government point the directly opposite way. They show that the peculiar value of our offer—the value that ensured its acceptance “with much satisfaction”—lay in its definiteness, its practicability, and the promptitude with which it could be carried into effect. The Imperial authorities knew whether a battery of artillery, with a battalion of infantry, ready for service, landed at Shakim in 80 days from acceptance of the offer, would be of use or not. They have declared that they will be. They are actively co-operating with the colony in the undertaking. And they have said, in effect, that while a contingent landed in 50 days will be of service and welcome, assistance postponed for a few weeks longer had better be postponed until the summer is past. Who may be supposed to have the better understanding of the situation of the Imperial Government or Sir HENRY PARKES? He has not given us much reason for preferring him as an authority; in fact, his judgment has been discredited by his remarks in a recent letter about "the front." We incline to the belief that the Imperial authorities knew what they were doing when they accepted the offer; and intelligence received since then supports the view that there is
